Mrs Anne Whitney
The Charlesgate

Manet Street, the Sea. Apr. 27. 1914.

My dear Mrs. Whetley.

I do not like the morning without news of you - and I should have called at your door, or telephoned you - had I not been in such profound anxiety about our nephew Robert Blake (the son of my husband's sister) who died after a severe & prolonged attack of pneumonia. His young wife and mother & sister all array.

He made a good fight - but his heart gave out.
I am expecting his wife & mother & sister in a few days.

I am down here, in our summer home, & get rested before their return - And when I get back,
I shall hope to find you Bill in town.

I wish I knew that you were well.

Believe me always yours

Edw. W. Johnson
